word mark customization

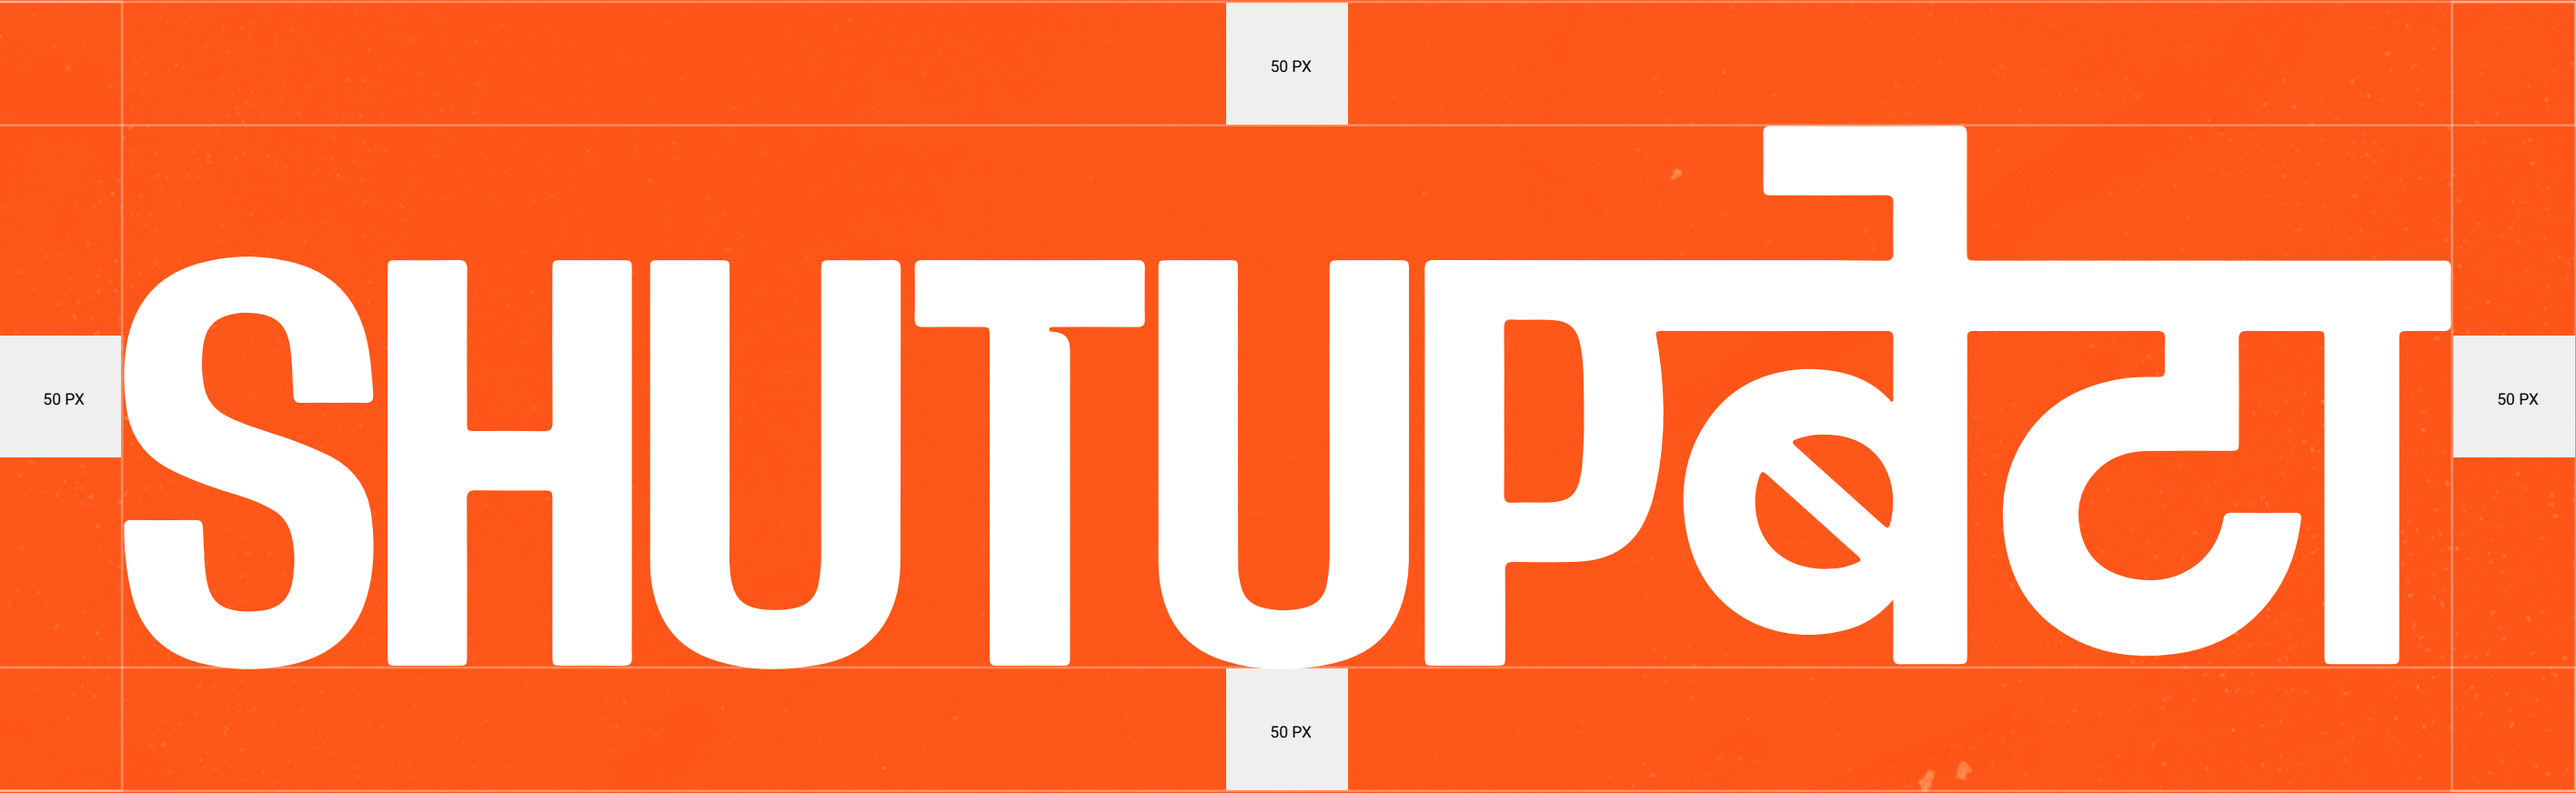

The ShutUpBeta wordmark blends English and Devanagari typography to represent modern Indian pop culture and everyday language. The customized “Beta” adds a layer of humor, familiarity, and cultural relatability, while the contrast between scripts creates a bold visual break that reflects the podcast’s fun, unfiltered, and conversational tone. The overall wordmark is designed to be expressive, memorable, and instantly recognizable across digital platforms.

Why this colour

The Deep Maroon and Ochre palette establishes archival authority and cultural nuance by evoking old ink, book bindings, and gold illumination, while the Parchment neutral ensures high-contrast readability against a background that feels like a trustworthy, institutional document.

Unfiltered Gossip ft. @SushantDivgikarRaniKohenur & Mom | ShutUp Beta EP1

50,000 views • 1 day ago

Welcome to the first episode of Shut Up Beta!
Where mums rule, kids rant, and no topic is off-limits.

In this episode, we're joined by the amazing Sushant Divgikr (@sushantdivgikr) singer, actor, performer, and an absolute powerhouse along with Mumma Divgikr.

From childhood stories to school drama, from work struggles to sexuality, this episode is full of masti, laughter, and unfiltered conversations. It's messy, it's chaotic, it's real, just like every mother-child chat ever.

Expect rants.

DISTINCT VISUAL STYLE

On YouTube, the thumbnail is the brand's first and most critical touchpoint. We designed a distinct visual style—using custom base neon typography and consistent color tints. This unique aesthetic ensures that when a video appears on a user's home feed, it is instantly recognizable as a shutupbeta piece of content.

CAPTION STYLE

A distinct visual treatment has been developed for all reels to ensure instant brand recognition. Each reel uses a consistent colour tint aligned with the visual identity, allowing viewers to immediately identify the content as shutupbeta even before reading captions or context.

THANK YOU
